

DEMISE OF AN EARLY PIONEER.

Sanora Rosaline Call Dustin died March 5th 1906 at Farmington.

LEAKAGE OF THE HEART.

Had experienced many of the Hardships known to Mormon History.

Sanora Rosaline Call Dustin, who passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Walter Rampton, in Farmington, on Mar. 5, 1906, of leakage of the heart, would have been eighty years old on the twenty-ninth of next December. She had been ailing since last October. She was the last of seven sisters of a family of thirteen children. Her twin brothers, Omer and Homer Call, of Willard, Utah, are the only ones to survive her. She was a sister to the late Anson

In 1860 or 1861, the family moved back to California and after living in Sacramento, and several other nearby towns and moving to Oregon, they finally settled at Acampo near Stockton, California where her husband died in 1872.

In 1878, she returned to Utah and has lived in this county since. She made a few trips back to look after her interests there. She has an eighty acre farm there for which she was offered $110 an acre just prior to her demise.

Funeral services were held in the Farmington Meeting house, Thursday, March 8th. The speakers were Elders Isreal Call, Patriarch Judson Tolman, Geo. W. Palmer, W. W. Willey, Bishop Cordon of Rigby and Bishop Secrist.

The remains were laid to rest

MRS. SANORA R. C. DUSTIN.

Call and Samantha Willey of Bountiful.

Her father was a pensioned soldier of 1812.

Mrs. Dustin was born in Madison, Ohio.

The fall of 1838, she expected to settle on Grande, River Missouri, where her brother Anson Call had purchased a farm, but before they reached Far West, they were stopped by a mob. In the spring of 1839, they crossed into Illinois where her father purchased a small farm in the town of Warsaw, where they lived until Feb. 1845, when she was married to Fernatius Dustin.

The same fall, they moved to Nauvoo where they lived in her brother Anson's house.

In 1846 her husband and herself and brother and others started for the Rocky Mountains in the company of Bishop Miller. They, however, wintered on the Missouri River, at the mouth of the Running water river on lands belonging to the Ponca Indians. The company run short of provisions during the winter and suffered much for want of food. In the spring they moved back to Winter Quarters where they remained until 1850, when they crossed the plains with ox teams in Capt. Foote's company. After arriving here, the first winter was spent in Bountiful.

May 24, 1851, a company was organized in Payson, under Apostles Amasa M. Lyman and Charles C. Rich, to go to California. The company purchased a ranch in San Bernardino.

They remained there until the fall of 1857, when they returned to Utah where the family remained until after the "Move" in 1858.

in Bountiful cemetery where her father and mother and a sister are buried.

Deceased has three children living in this county, son Arthur and Mrs. Walter Rampton at Farmington and Mrs. David Thompson in Clearfield, Oscar Dustin, Mrs. Cylistia Wilkin son, Andrew and Charles Dustin at Acampo and a daughter Elnora in Fresno Co. California. Three children preceded her to the great beyond.

She was baptized into the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints in 1836 at Kirtland, when she was ten years old.
